Roger Beebe's Films for ONE to EIGHT PROJECTORS

Films for ONE to EIGHT PROJECTORS expands the Museum's support of projects presented outside the traditional gallery setting. With this latest creation, Beebe presents a program and performance of his recent multi-projector films to Miami, where he explores the possibilities of using multiple projectors—running as many as eight projectors simultaneously.

Beebe received a BA from Amherst College in 1993 and a PhD from the Literature Program at Duke University in 2000. He has also studied at the University of Grenoble, the University of California at Berkeley, and the École Normale Supérieure.

His films and videos have screened on six continents (including Antarctica). They have also played on the CBS Jumbotron in Times Square, at the Museum of Modern Art, and at Anthology Film Archives as well as at hundreds of festivals including Rotterdam, Sundance, the European Media Arts Festival (EMAF), and New York Underground.
